No problem. There is actually a guy with photographic evidence he got a perfect score back in the 80s. But he never pushed for the record and Twin Galaxies wouldn't recognize it. It's only a big deal because NAMCO made Billy Player of the Century for it.

Dude, they don't even note reaching the kill screen in pac man. An elite player can do it at will and have been for 35 years. Billy's record was for a perfect score. Meaning he got every point available in the game and did not lose a man till do so on purpose at the kill screen.

from:RocksEm until:2018-07-01

RocksEm @RocksEm · 15 Apr 2018

Replying to @ConcertCruizer @ZootPlays and 2 others

The extra 2 guys are well known. It's the max setting on PAC Man which allows the max score because you can use those 2 guys at the end to get 180 more points. But anyone who ever played it in an arcade had 3 guys. As to the agreement see the documentary Chasing Ghosts.

1

RocksEm @RocksEm · 15 Apr 2018

Replying to @ConcertCruizer @ZootPlays and 2 others

Actually the end screen for Pac Man was reached 15 years before Billy did it. He has the "perfect score". The highest you can get. Mostly due to the fact he broke an agreement and the game was set to 5 men instead of 3.

1

RocksEm @RocksEm · 15 Apr 2018
